BLAKE SHELTON

My Divorce Diet

Blake Shelton was never one to mind his waistline. "I'm watching it get bigger!" he quipped to Us in 2013. But the 6-foot-5 Voice coach says his July split from wife of four years Miranda Lambert, 31, had an unexpected perk: It slimmed him down. "You should try the divorce diet. . . . The whole stress of getting through all of that is just weird," the "Drink on It" singer, 39, confessed on Nashville's America's Morning Show September 23. When asked how he lost weight, Shelton continued: "I'm not eating as many fried pickles. . . . I wasn't, like, going to the gym." Indeed, a Shelton source says the avid junk food fan "hates working out but does run on the treadmill sporadically. Most of the weight he lost is from him trying to eat better. It happened gradually."

THE SINGLE LIFE Shelton — who added on the Bobby Bones Show September 23 that he and Lambert remain "buddies" — is so busy, "he hasn't had time to think about dating," says the source. He performed at the iHeartRadio Music Festival in Las Vegas September 19, he's writing songs for a new album due out next year and he begins live shows for the NBC talent competition in November. "He dove right into work after the divorce," says the source. "He wants more balance in the future, but he's enjoying what he's doing. He's very happy."

Lambert (in Nashville Sept. 1) has said she's surviving on caffeine.

Jewel (in 1995) says Penn "wrote me sweet notes that he hid in my pockets."

The Way They Were

Jewel put her 1995 relationship with Sean Penn on paper. In her new memoir, Never Broken, the singer, 41, says she fell "in love" with the Oscar winner, 55, during his break from future wife Robin Wright. After seeing Jewel on TV, he phoned the then–21-year-old Alaska native and "began to court me in earnest, following me around on tour," she writes. "He was a persistent and inventive suitor, and I enjoyed it immensely." Though they split the same year, a source tells Us Penn was equally enamored: "He looks back on her fondly."

ABOUT FACE

Squeaky clean! Kylie Jenner, 18, skipped her two-and-a-half-hour, $1,600 hair and makeup routine for an L.A.-area outing September 21 (right). "Kylie's embracing a more natural appearance," says a source, who credits Jenner's boyfriend, Tyga, 25, for the makeunder. "He constantly tells her she's beautiful."

25 Things You Don't Know About Me

The True Blood alum, 46, fills Us in

The Bastard Executioner airs on FX Tuesdays at 10 P.M.

1. Louis Armstrong has long been my hero.
2. My stage debut was at age 4 singing "Nellie the Elephant" in a talent competition. I didn't win.
3. My worst audition was attempting a Welsh accent. I sounded like a Welshman who has lived most of his life in India.
4. I refused to have my hair cut over my ears until age 12.
5. I can unicycle and juggle at the same time.
6. I had a baked-bean eating competition while camping with my friend when I was 12. He ate so many in a short time that about 100 beans shot from his nose.
7. I supplemented my income through college by playing pool.
8. My real name is James, but my mum didn't like the nickname "Jimmy," so she changed it to Stephen when I was 6 months old.

9. I got to the second-highest level as a chorister in the church choir. My voice dropped before I could take the highest.

10. I used to walk down the aisle with my soccer cleats on because church was right after soccer.
11. I fell in a haunted house at age 10 and snapped my front tooth in half.
12. I stole my dad's car at age 13 and drove down the motorway at 90 mph. I didn't get caught. Sorry, Dad.
13. I have never owned a car I did not crash.
14. I did smash up one that wasn't mine. It was my friend's new Audi convertible. Sorry, Nigel.

15. My sister Amanda and I built a slide with a plank of wood resting on a speaker. The speaker fell and we smashed through that window, above.

16. My happiest memory is jumping about 25 feet from a pile of pallets onto a tower of mattresses.
17. I once woke up in a prop cupboard, after a particularly long night, dressed as a camel.
18. My nickname growing up was "Dick." There are a couple of reasons for that.

19. I lived on a boat in London for seven years.

20. Many, many mobile phones are in the canal next to where my boat is moored. And keys.
21. My old dog was named Flash, but he fell into the canal so often, I changed it to Splash.
22. He once chased a sheep off a cliff and I had to swim out into the ocean to save it.
23. I would only eat combinations of egg, bacon and bread until age 9.
24. I love photography and still carry a film camera with me.
25. In my kitchen cupboard, I have about 35 jars of chutney. One dates back to 1998. My wife [Anna Paquin, 33] thinks it's gross.

BETTER LUCK NEXT TIME!

From rejection to romance: These celeb suitors refused to be deterred

GIGI HADID + JOE JONAS

Their four-month-old love was seven years in the making: The model, 20, says the singer, 26, first asked her out when she was 13. "I said no," she revealed on September 21. "I literally didn't even know what it meant to hang out with a boy."

SUSAN + ROBERT DOWNEY JR.

The Iron Man actor, 50, asked out his film producer wife, 41, three times on the set of their 2003 movie Gothika before she accepted. As she recalled, "I mean, he was interesting, but weird."

BILL + HILLARY CLINTON

Bill, 69, asked for Hillary's hand in marriage twice before she agreed in 1975. The presidential candidate, 67, explained to Lena Dunham September 24: "I was terrified about losing my identity."

IGGY AZALEA + NICK YOUNG

The pair are now planning a "Fancy" wedding — but the rapper, 25, wasn't smitten with the NBA baller, 30, when they met years ago. "I hated him," she says. "I thought he was an a--hole!"

PAULETTA + DENZEL WASHINGTON

It was love at first sight for the star, 60, when he met the actress, 65, back in 1977. But not for Pauletta: After five years of dating, she rejected his marriage proposal twice before saying yes.

WHAT'S IN MY BAG?

Actress and singer Jill Hennessy, 46, rifles through her carryall

To compose music for her second album, the actress on CBS's Madam Secretary got creative. "I wrote lyrics on the back of shopping lists!" the singer tells Us of I Do (out October 2). "When an idea strikes, you don't want to lose it." The mom of Marco, 12, and Gianni, 7, with Paolo Mastropietro, 51, catalogs other musts in her Tory Burch tote.

PACK TO DISTRACT

"I've got Berenstain Bears books to keep my youngest occupied when we're at a restaurant. The Berenstain Bears and Too Much TV is a very necessary one in our house. I also have action figures."

WHAT A CARD

"You know those little punch cards you get? I have them for Jack's Stir Brew and Big Gay Ice Cream [in NYC's Greenwich Village]. That's the stuff of life, my friend. Coffee and ice cream."

LOST AND FOUND

"I'm carrying a pair of retro-style Ray-Ban sunglasses that my son found on the beach. They're actually in pretty good shape for being washed up on a shore!"

PUCKER PUNCH

"I keep one Sephora lipstick in case I have to go somewhere fancy. I love reds. I don't wear any other makeup. Too lazy."

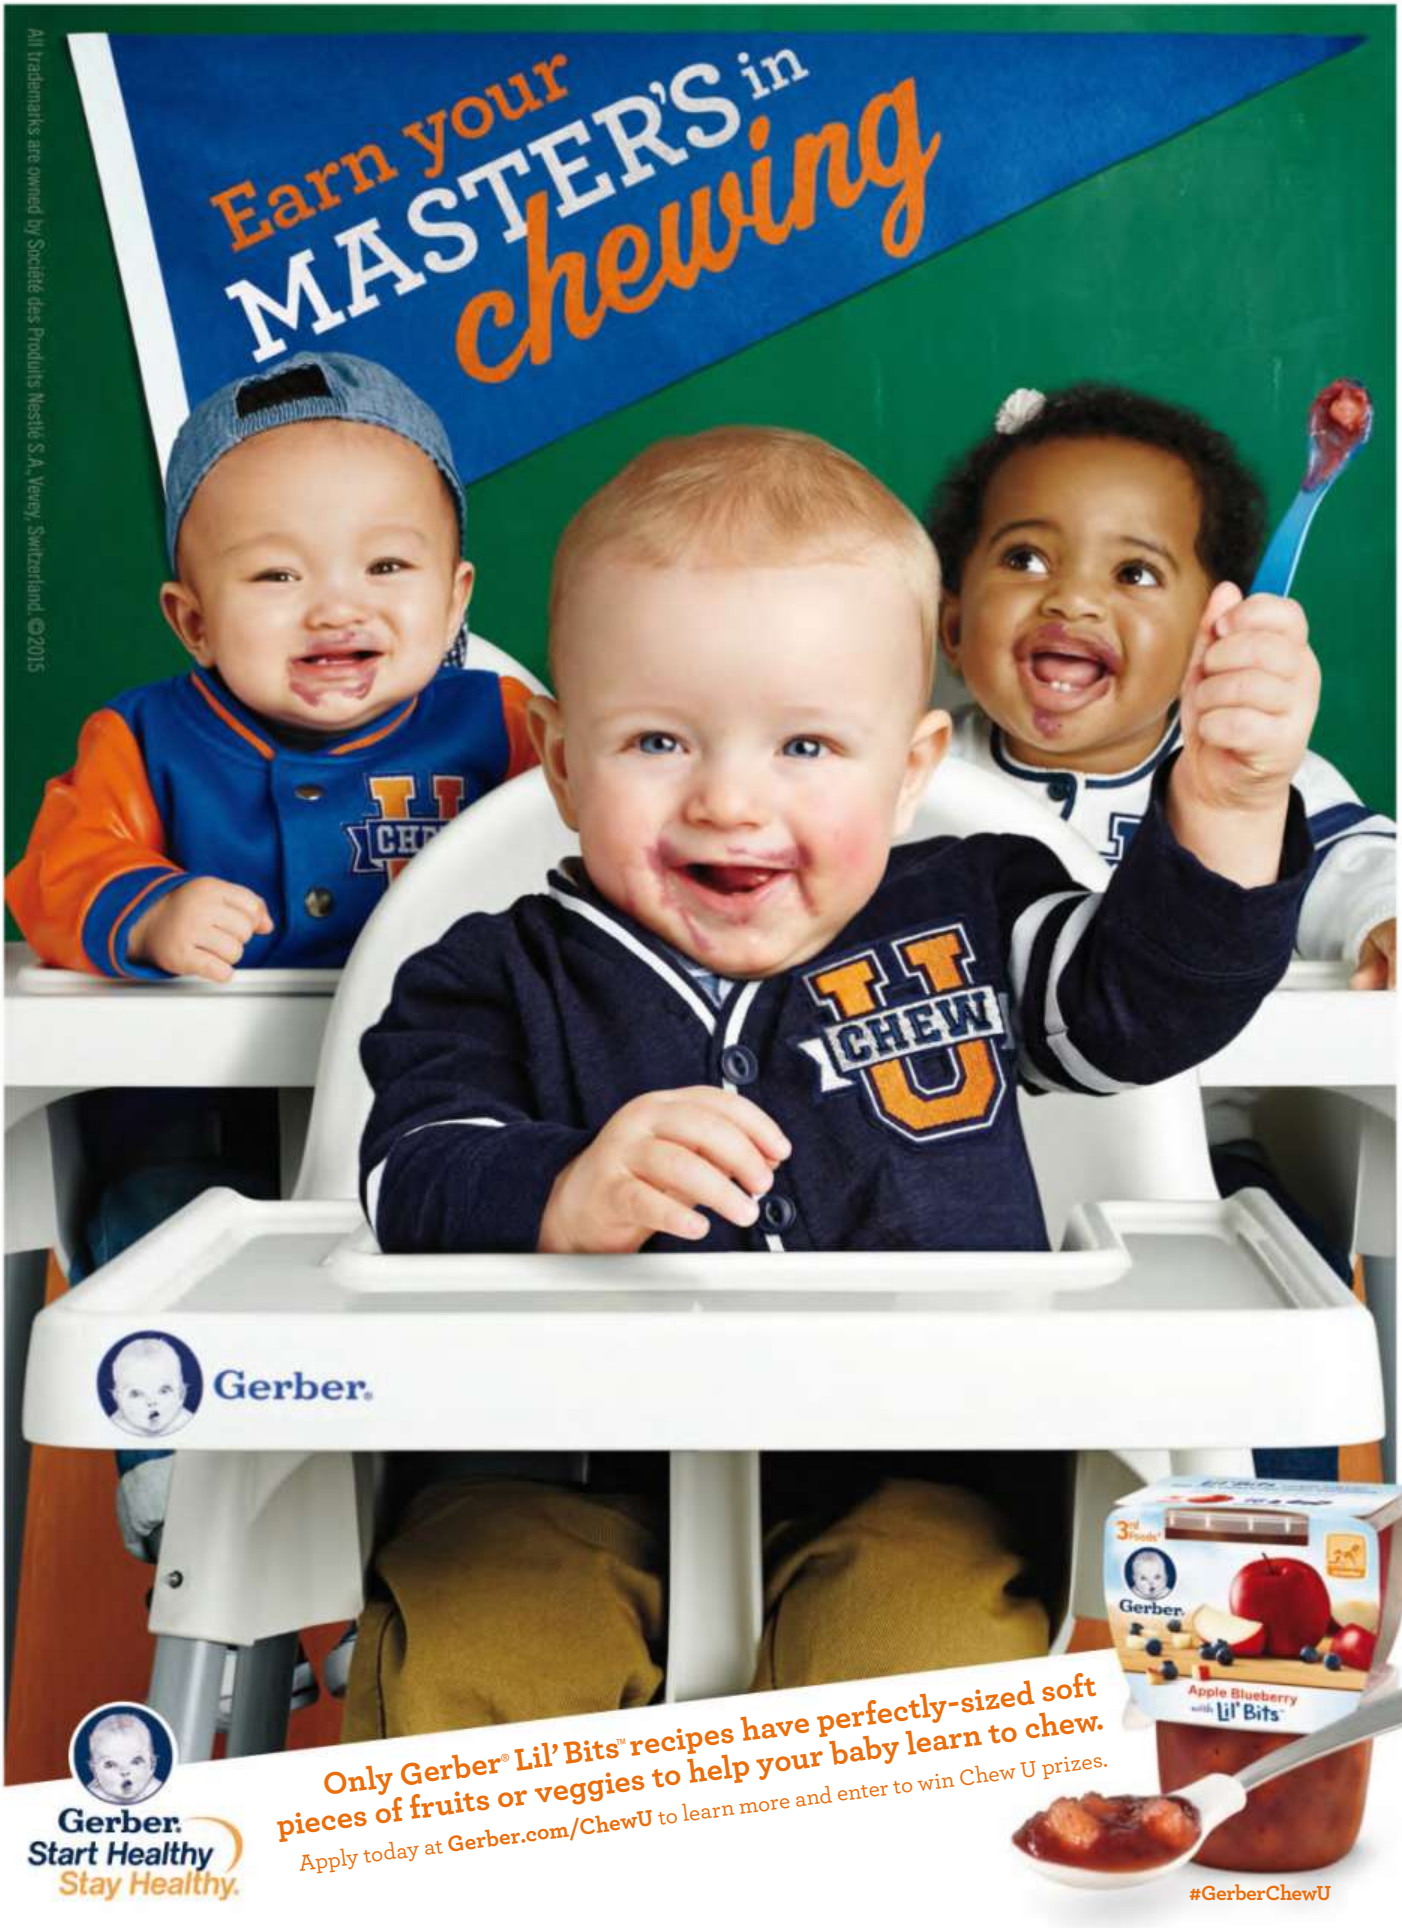

A LITTLE BIT NUTTY

"I never leave home without a bag of dry-roasted, salted peanuts. I'm an addict. You never know when you'll need that protein!"

LOOSE TALK

WHAT THE STARS SAID THIS WEEK

"My husband and I never text each other. . . . Once in a blue moon, we'll text. But mainly we say, 'I want to hear your voice.'"

NICOLE KIDMAN

"All of a sudden, things flip. When you get to be my age, I'm like, 'Baby, we've got to cuddle. You've got to talk to me.'"

On how his sex life has changed after 25 years of marriage,

TERRY CREWS

"You only lose your virginity once."

On advice every young girl should hear,

JULIE BOWEN

"She's saying 'mama.' . . . You know what my wife doesn't realize, though? She calls me 'mama' too."

On 9-month-old daughter James with Blake Lively,

RYAN REYNOLDS

"I was very calculated. I wanted to be treated like a guy."

On achieving business success in Hollywood,

JESSICA ALBA

"I'm not going to pretend I have great breakup advice. It's hard. Good luck. You'll be fine."

ARIANA GRANDE

"Not being perfect, my girlfriends and a glass of wine at the end of the day."

On what is more important to her today than 20 years ago,

LIV TYLER

"I didn't know what to get him for his 30th birthday. He has enough. I mean, look at me."

Joking about husband Justin Mikita,

JESSE TYLER FERGUSON

"It's the old Jerry Maguire thing. . . . She really grounds him. He's always got something cooking, but he loves coming back to her."

On Ashton Kutcher and wife Mila Kunis,

JON CRYER

"She'll rule the world or destroy it. There will be no gray areas."

On 5-year-old daughter Georgette,

MELISSA MCCARTHY

"When she doesn't get her way, she throws a little tantrum!" The 32-year-old, wed to actor Sean McEwen, 42, talks about her birthday girl with Us.

Q: Are you planning a big party?

I completely went over the top with a petting zoo and Elmo and, you know, a jumping castle. I couldn't help myself! Everything's so cute. But we're donating her gifts to the children's hospital, so I feel better about going overboard.

Q: What are her latest milestones?

We're going to do potty training soon. She's starting to get the hang of that. And she says "I love you" a million times a day. She says "Ah ooh ay," which is her version. It's supercute.

Q: Thinking of having more kids?

We're going to try next year. I want to spend this time with Phoenix, to make sure she has her own life first.

Beverley Has a Pair of Bookworms!

Toys barely hold Beverley Mitchell's kids' attention. "Right now, we're in love with books," the 7th Heaven alum, 34, says of daughter Kenzie, 2, and son Hutton, 8 months (above, with accountant husband Michael Cameron at the September 19 Red Carpet Safety Awareness event in L.A.). Their current fave: Judith Viorst's Alexander and the Terrible, Horrible, No Good, Very Bad Day.

SOFÍA & JOE
Wedding Countdown

Sofía Vergara and Joe Manganiello are ready to party — and soon. The couple will marry November 22 at Florida's Breakers Palm Beach, and Vergara, 43, is in full-on planning mode. "I am very detail-oriented, so I am kind of like a nightmare," she confessed on Good Morning America September 23. Manganiello, 38, doesn't seem to mind. "He's eager to keep her happy, so he'll do whatever she wants," a source tells Us. "They already feel married!"

JOSH & HEATHER

Sealing the Deal

After putting their July 2014 nuptials on hold, Million Dollar Listing Los Angeles stars Josh Altman and Heather Bilyeu have finally set a date: April 2, 2016. "Last year, our guest list had become the who's who of my clients, and it shouldn't be like that," It's Your Move author Altman, 36, tells Us. "It should be about us." Now the couple of five years will wed in front of 90 family members and friends at the Aspen Art Museum in Colorado. "There's a rooftop deck that overlooks the mountain," adds the bride-to-be, 30. "You can be more effortless with the details when you have such beautiful surroundings." Even so, the real estate agents have enlisted Altman's mother, Judy, to plan the fete. Jokes Bilyeu, "She's the only one who can handle Josh!"

The duo (in London Sept. 21) began dating early this year.

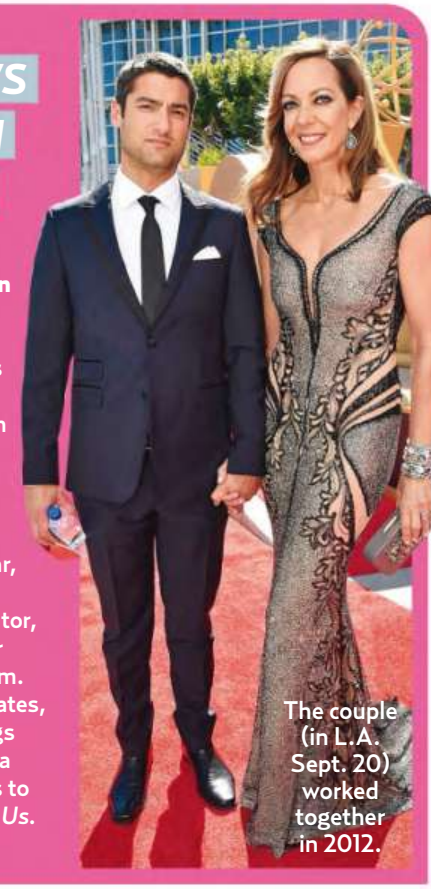

CARA & ST. VINCENT

Always in Style

Cara Delevingne knows how to command attention, even off the runway. Sitting in the front row at Burberry Prorsum's London fashion show September 21, the actress and former model, 23, leaned in to whisper to girlfriend St. Vincent, 33, throughout the event. "They are yin and yang," says a source close to the indie rocker (real name: Annie Clark). "Annie is a nice girl from Oklahoma and Cara is a wild Englishwoman. But Annie has this calming presence that makes it work."

ALLISON'S GOLDEN NIGHT

Forget champagne and canapés. Allison Janney and boyfriend of more than a year Philip Joncas celebrated her seventh Emmy win with a late-night trip to McDonald's September 20. It was a hard-earned cheat day for the Mom star, 55, who credits the production coordinator, 35, with keeping her motivated at the gym. "I've been doing Pilates, and I have three dogs that I hike with and a boyfriend who loves to work out," she tells Us. "So that helps!"

The couple (in L.A. Sept. 20) worked together in 2012.

"The new normal," the mom wrote Sept. 21 at home in L.A.

DAVE & ODETTE

Baby Makes Three

Date nights have changed since Dave and Odette Annable welcomed daughter Charlie Mae September 7. "Dinner in bed, sleeping baby . . . and a super exhausted mama," the Astronaut Wives Club star, 30, posted September 21. But the actor, 36, already has big plans for his ladies. "Odi and I love to play golf, so I think we'll bring our little girl out there and teach her," he tells Us. "She's got no choice!"

THEIR SUPPORT NETWORK

Zoe Saldana admits that raising twin boys Bowie and Cy, 9 months, can be "overwhelming." So when the actress and her husband, artist Marco, 36, need a break, they page her sisters. "We have a tribe!" cracks the star, 37. "You have to lean on people who love you." Marco's mom also pitches in. "She kicked us out of the house," Zoe recently told Us. "She was like, 'Leave me with these kids! Go have a good time!'"

The couple (in L.A. Sept. 24) wed in 2013.

Bryan Moves In!

Randall becomes Bullock's live-in love

Sandra Bullock made room in her seven-bedroom, 8,000-square-foot Beverly Hills estate for one more. The star's boyfriend of less than a year, Bryan Randall (inset, far right), "still has his place, but he's living at Sandra's," a source says. The Our Brand Is Crisis lead, 51, and the photographer, 49, enjoy quiet nights at home with 5-year-old Louis (right), who Bullock adopted in New Orleans in 2010. "Bryan and Sandra are total homebodies," adds the source. But Bullock did venture out the evening of September 27. She was photographed carrying a baby girl into an L.A. hospital, leading some to speculate the actress adopted another child. (Her rep didn't return calls for comment.) The move wouldn't surprise Bullock's pals. "Sandra is a great mom," says an insider. "She's very attentive."

Bullock (Sept. 12 in Toronto) "is so involved in Louis' life," says a source. "He is her No. 1 priority."

Inside Their Sudden Split

The duo (in May) met through mutual friends in 2013.

Amanda Seyfried and Justin Long are back to walking red carpets solo. After more than two years of dating, the Ted 2 beauty, 29, and New Girl actor have split. "It happened a few weeks ago," says a source close to the couple, who shared a $1.9 million apartment in New York City. "He's really heartbroken." While Long, 37, declared in 2014, "We're in it for the long haul," and Seyfried recently gushed about "the funniest guy I know," another source says their relationship was quietly unraveling. "They had different schedules and different lives," explains the source. "They just grew apart." As Seyfried admitted in May: "Making movies is two solid months of 12-, 14-hour days. I mean, it can ruin your relationship."

HER HOLY HABIT

Right on the money: A palace insider tells Hot Stuff that Queen Elizabeth, 89, never carries cash — except on Sunday mornings. "She donates to the church collection basket," says the source of the monarch, whose visage adorns every pound. And crumpled bills won't do: "Her butler irons a 5-pound note into a little square by folding it until you can only see her face!"

The pair wed in Mexico in July 2014.

It's a Boy for Naya!

Baby glee! Naya Rivera and her actor husband, Ryan Dorsey, welcomed a son in Los Angeles last month, multiple sources confirm to Hot Stuff. "They are so excited to be first-time parents," an insider says of the couple, who announced the pregnancy in February. "It was a very easy pregnancy and birth." Pals say that parenthood has also been a breeze for the Glee alum, 28, and Dorsey, 32. "Naya was born to be a mother and is doing really great so far," adds the source. "And Ryan has amazing paternal instincts and has been waiting on them both hand and foot."

Kaley's SHOCKING SPLIT!

The Big Bang Theory sweetheart Cuoco fell for Ryan Sweeting instantly. But his secret addictions destroyed their marriage

BY SARAH GROSSBART

When you know, you know. That's how Kaley Cuoco explained her decision to wed tennis pro Ryan Sweeting just six months after meeting on a blind date. Within hours — hours! — of that first dinner in July 2013, the Florida-based athlete had moved belongings into the actress' L.A.-area spread. By the next day, the star had begun imagining herself as Mrs. Sweeting. "I thought, I don't want to spend a day without him!" she told Us this January. "It was just a feeling inside of me and a look in his eyes. I knew there was no one else I wanted to be with." In her gut, she figured there was no problem they couldn't solve. "I knew when I met Ryan, no matter whatever came along that I didn't love or that I loved, it was always going to be OK with me," she said. "I was always going to make it work."

Until one issue proved insurmountable. Multiple sources tell Us the Big Bang Theory vet, 29, told friends that she filed to end her 21-month marriage September 28 because she could no longer tolerate Sweeting's abuse of alcohol and prescription pills. The 28-year-old pro — once ranked No. 64 in the world — "developed a dependency on painkillers" after a series of injuries, claims a Cuoco source. (Within months of meeting her, the ATP World Tour competitor had back surgery.) Another insider close to Cuoco says the Bahamian-born athlete — who, as a University of Florida freshman in 2006, was arrested for DUI and possession of a drug with intent to sell — also struggled with alcohol. The bubbly blonde knew about Sweeting's issues when she accepted a 2½-carat square-cut ring from him

"Everything I do is fast," Cuoco (with Sweeting Jan. 6) told Us earlier this year of her courtship. "I make quick decisions. I don't wait around."

A Whirlwind Romance

From blind date to bling in three months flat! Us relives the couple's passionate relationship

SEPTEMBER 2013

"It was completely love at first sight," she tells Us of meeting Sweeting.

Engaged in 12 weeks, she says, "It didn't happen fast enough for me."

The star wears Vera Wang to wed Sweeting in front of friends and family at a New Year's bash: "It was perfect!"

after a three-month romance. "She supported him," claims the insider, "but she said he couldn't make the commitment to get sober." According to Cuoco, says the source, "he'd tell her he was working on it, and instead go get wasted."

A reported last-ditch effort to enter a Boston rehab in September did little to sway his wife. "She didn't want to get divorced, but felt she had no choice," says a third Cuoco confidant. "She couldn't fix him. He wasn't the man she thought he was."

A SECRET BATTLE

Nor was their marriage the picture of domestic bliss the actress often described. Though the TV star loved to rave about her role as a wife (she told Redbook in 2014, "I cook for Ryan five nights a week. . . . I like coming home and serving him"), the two regularly lobbed shots at each other. One source says their early spats were about starting a family. Two months after their secret New Year's Eve 2013 vows ("The coolest thing ever," Cuoco described to Us), she said they were on the same page with children. "I can't wait!" she told Us. "And my husband wants them too." But the insider adds the timing of "having kids was a source of fighting." Another point of contention: her relationship anxiety. "She had a lot of insecurities," says the source. The biggest blowouts, however, were about his sobriety. "He was clean when she met him and honest about past troubles, but then he'd relapse," the source says Cuoco told pals. "She got tired of the ups and downs."

The final dip came after another injury earlier this year. "Kaley told friends doctors prescribed something that he was taking too much of," says the source. "That was when it went downhill again." As a tabloid reported on troubles, Cuoco denied issues, writing in a since-deleted April 5 Instagram post that such talk "only makes us stronger." But at home, says the confidant, they were crumbling: "He'd lash out at her. He had a major problem and she couldn't do anything about it."

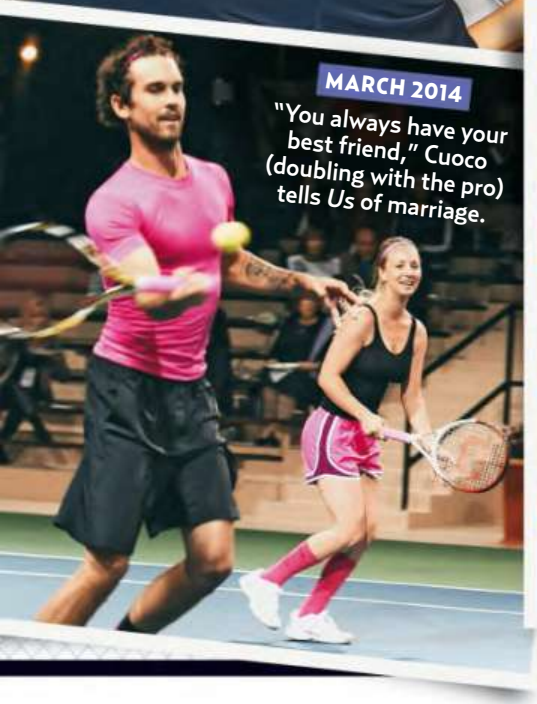

THAT'S A WRAP

By early September she was tired of trying. "She decided to pull the plug," says the insider. As she gamely made the rounds promoting season 9 of her CBS hit — on Watch What Happens Live September 20, she even gushed that costar and ex Johnny Galecki "loves" Sweeting — she privately took steps to end her union. The night before her September 25 announcement, the star (who commands $1 million per episode) packed away her wedding rings. The next day, she'd scrubbed Sweeting's presence from her social media, deleting dozens of cute selfies. "She isn't wasting any time with ending the marriage," says the insider, adding that she and Sweeting have a prenup. "She's ready to move on."

For now, that means putting on a brave face in public. Hours after

Says an onlooker of the group, "They clinked glasses several times." A day later, the avid equestrian literally got back in the saddle, competing with her horse Netty Pie at the Flintridge Autumn Classic in La Cañada Flintridge, California. "I've never felt more surrounded by love," she later posted on Instagram.

The star rounded out her weekend by keeping her commitment to appear at the Bryan Bros. Foundation tennis event in Camarillo, California. In between snapping photos with fans, she entertained a pal's baby. "She was dancing with her to 'Proud Mary,'" says an eventgoer, "and kept turning to the baby and going, 'Rollin'! Rollin'!'"

SUPPORTING CAST

Despite her own best intentions to, er, keep on rolling, pals say Cuoco is grappling with grief. One friend says the star, who endured a broken engagement to addiction specialist Josh Resnik in 2012 and a failed fling with Man of Steel star Henry Cavill weeks before meeting Sweeting, is temporarily swearing off men. "She says she's never dating again," asserts the source. "She is so down about any kind of future relationship." The Cuoco source adds that the pain is real. "Kaley is devastated," says the insider. "She can't believe this is happening. She really did think it would be forever." US

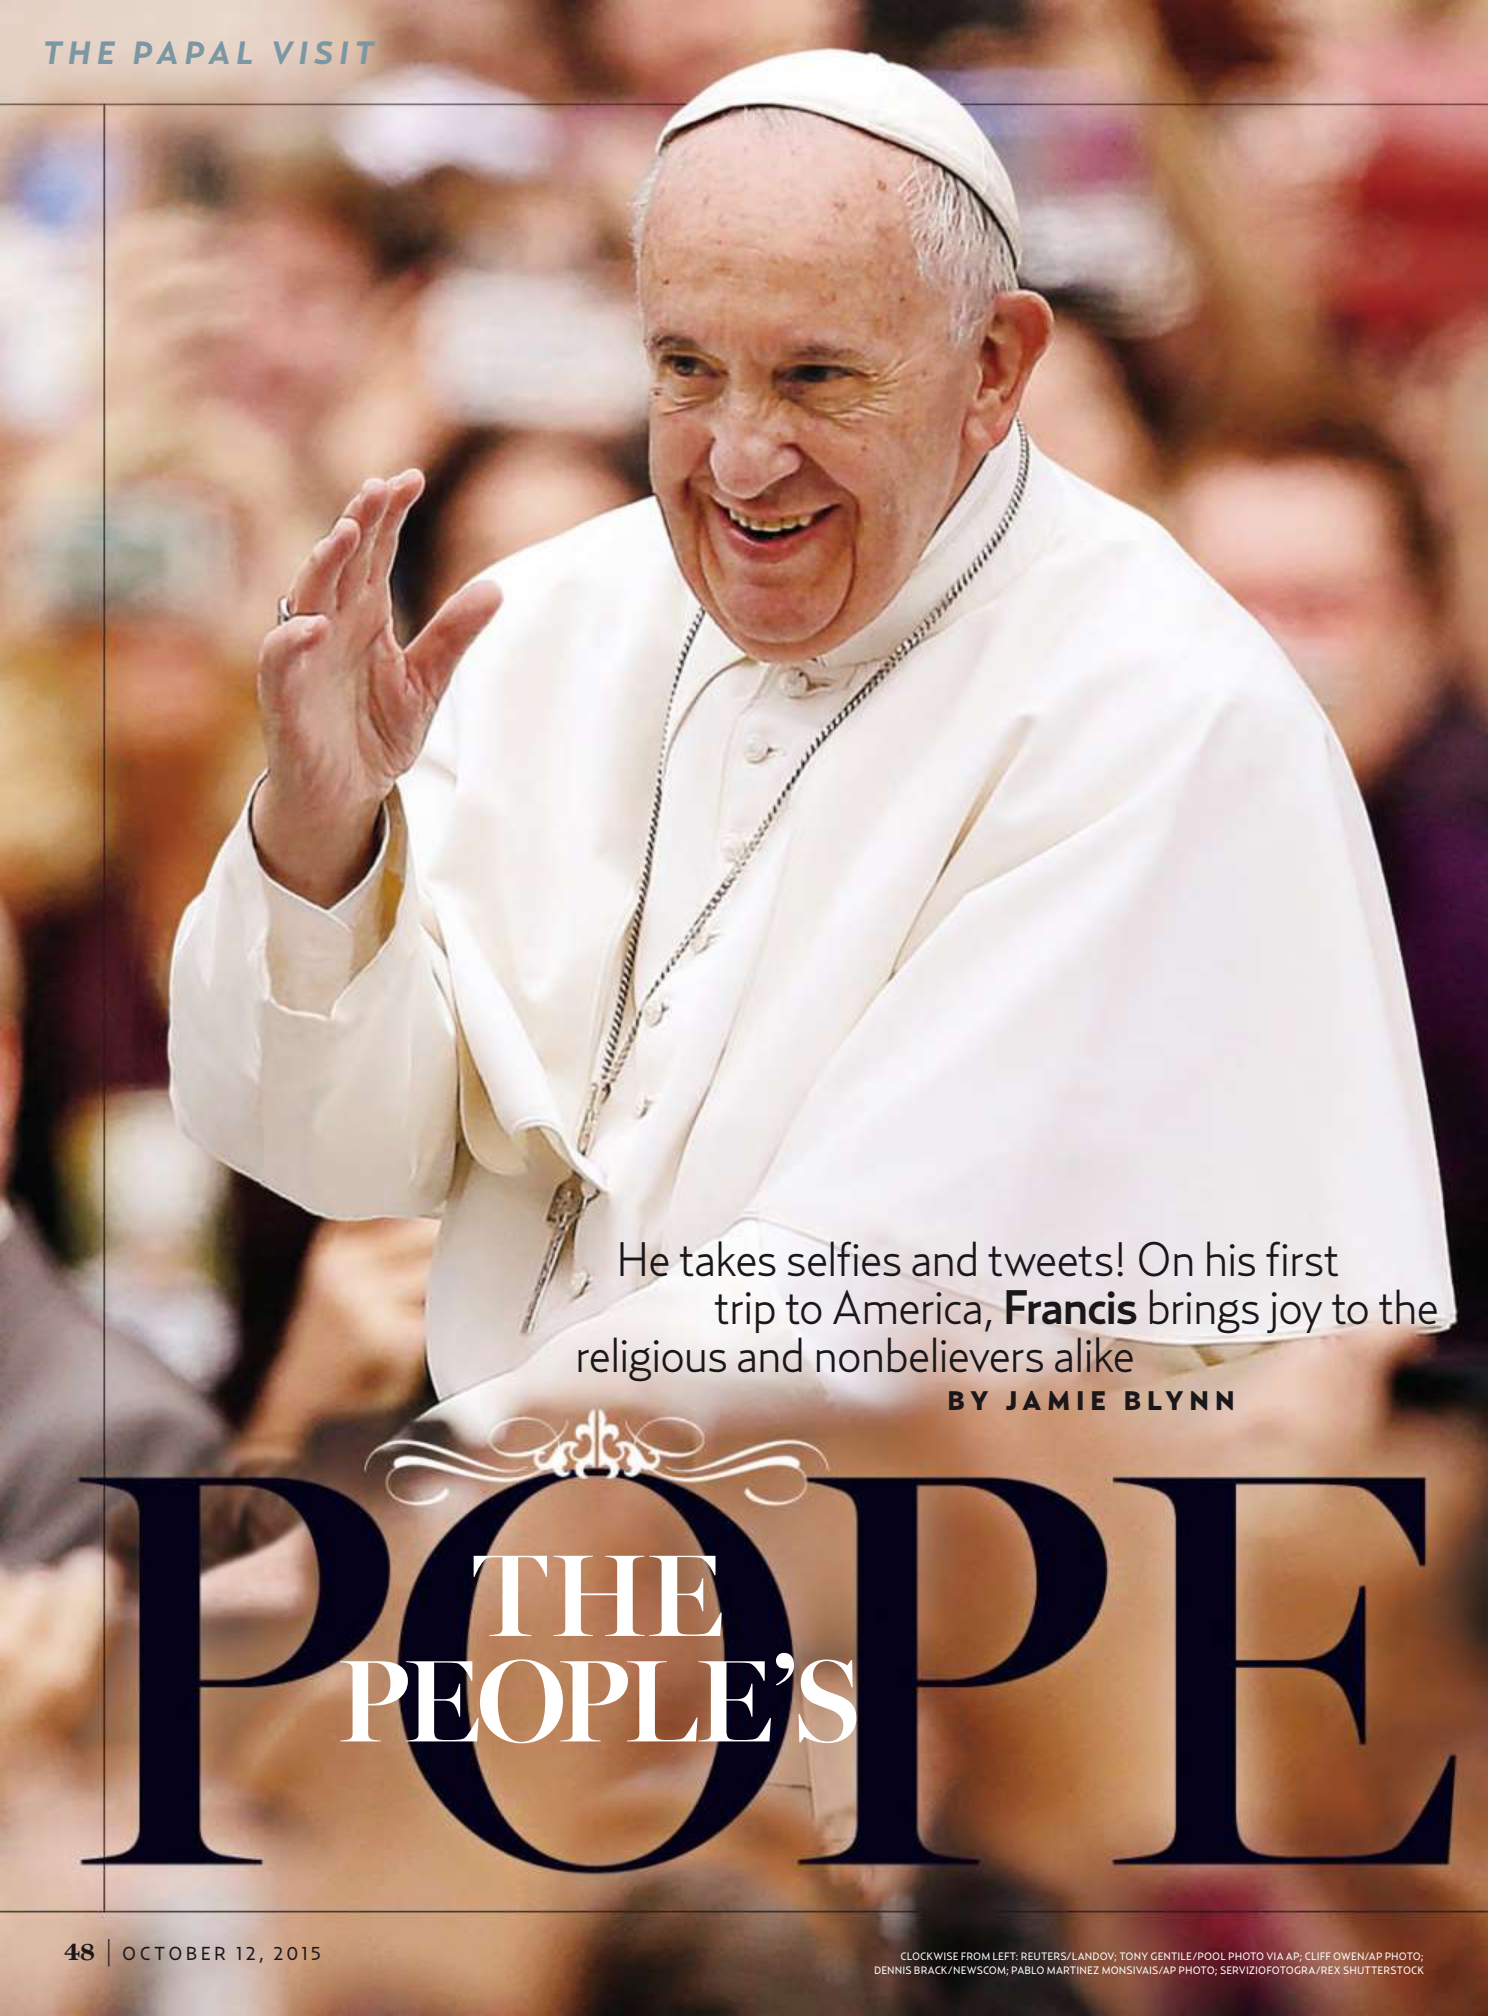

Ex-cellent Pal

Cuoco called her ex Galecki "one of my dearest friends" September 20 — and he's living up to the title! "Johnny said he's there for her," a source confirms of the 40-year-old costar she split with in 2009. But it's unlikely they'll ever get back together. Adds the source of the duo, now playing newlyweds on TV: "That's so not where her head is right now."

SEPTEMBER 22–24

For six days in September, millions made pilgrimages to be in the presence of a 78-year-old man. Souls from around the world lined city streets to glimpse Argentine-born Pope Francis. Mothers held up babies for kisses. Worshippers shuffled through TSA-level security. "There's not a single person alive who could command this kind of affection," Frank Neill, 44, who accompanied Francis to Curran-Fromhold prison in Philadelphia September 27, tells Us. "Not the biggest rock star or head of state." Of course, the pious pontiff himself dismisses his celebrity. "Stars are beautiful to look at. I like to look at them in the summer when the sky is clear," he remarked to a reporter September 27. "But the pope must be the servant of the servants of God. . . . How many stars . . . go out and fall? It is a fleeting thing. On the other hand, being servant of the servants of God is something that doesn't pass." His reception, however, resonated. After his visit — which included a historic address to Congress — the leader of 1.2 billion Roman Catholics marveled, "What surprised me was the warmth of the people. It was a beautiful thing."

FASCINATING FACTS ABOUT FRANCIS

HE'S GOT A SQUAD

The Bishop of Rome rolled to the U.S. with a 30-person entourage. Along with translators, a press team and security, he brought Valentina Ambrosi, an artist from the Holy See's mosaic workshop. Every time Francis travels on an official trip, he invites one of the Vatican's nonreligious employees. The group's ride: a chartered Alitalia Airbus A330-200, which holds up to 283 people.

BULLETS DON'T FRIGHTEN HIM

Unlike his predecessors, the pontiff chose to forgo a clear bulletproof shield. His custom-made Jeep popemobile, shipped to the U.S. months before his arrival, is open at the sides. Comparing the protective casing to being trapped in a "sardine can," he admits he's not concerned with potential attack: "At my age, I don't have much to lose."

HE TOTES HIS LOAD

The pontiff insists on carrying his own luggage, reveals a Vatican source. Inside the black leather briefcase: personal papers, a toothbrush, shaving cream and a razor — Francis shaves twice a day!

HE LOVES A LITTLE CAR

In the U.S., he was chauffeured in a 163-inch-long black Fiat 500L. Back home, Francis drives himself around in a 1984 Renault 4, given to him in 2013 with 186,000 miles already on it!

THE GRUELING SCHEDULE HURTS

All that standing in the popemobile takes a physical toll: Francis, who suffers from chronic nerve pain in the leg and back, travels with his own physician.

HE'LL ACCEPT PRESENTS

Preferably delicious ones. En route to Cuba for a four-day jaunt before his U.S. tour, the pope was given a box of empanadas by a member of the press on board his flight (no word on whether he shared the pastries). Other journalists on the historic trip shared personal items. Says a Vatican source, "Some had video clips of their family they showed the pope. Letters, notes and gifts."

ENGLISH IS A STRUGGLE

The Argentina native, fluent in Italian, German and Spanish, spent the summer learning English. At the World Meeting of Families speech in Philadelphia, he was comfortable enough to ad-lib a joke about bachelorhood.

HE LIKES BANANAS

While staying at a $16 million NYC townhouse, the pope asked for water and bananas in his room.

HE'S DROPPIN' THE MIC!

Later this year, the pontiff will release a pop-rock album, Wake Up! The 11 tracks, available for preorder on iTunes, will feature excerpts from his speeches and sacred hymns laid on top of music. "It is a duty to be vigilant," he says on the record. "No one who sleeps can sing, dance and rejoice."

Morena & Ben's BABY SURPRISE

Here's a twist no one saw coming: Gotham costars Baccarin and McKenzie are a couple and parents-to-be! BY ERIC ANDERSSON

Life with a 23-month-old has taught Morena Baccarin how to keep calm and carry on. "You just have to get comfortable with chaos," the Gotham star and mom of son Julius told Us in August. "Understand that things changing is the new normal."

That mantra applies to more than just motherhood. Her husband, director Austin Chick, filed for divorce June 11. Three months later, in a September 11 court declaration obtained by Us, Baccarin revealed she has already moved on — and is expecting a baby — with Gotham costar Ben McKenzie, 37: "Today, I am in a new committed relationship. I am planning to remarry. Also, I am three and a half months pregnant." The expectant parents, who play a couple on the Fox drama as well, "are genuinely happy with everything right now," says a Baccarin source, who adds the 36-year-old Brazil native is trying not to let her contentious split from Chick spoil her exciting news. "But divorces are always stressful."

Especially hers (see box, right). In court filings related to the divorce, L.A.'s Chick, 44 — who fought with NYC's Baccarin over their son's bicoastal living arrangement — has accused his estranged wife of cheating. Since Baccarin is into her second trimester, "this places the moment of conception right in the first week of June 2015, the time she was telling me she wanted to work on our marriage and well before we stopped sharing a bed," states Chick.

McKenzie calls her Gotham character a "kindred spirit" to his detective.

They hit the Fox/FX Emmy party for a Sept. 20 L.A. date night.

But those close to the actress insist she never strayed. "There is nothing salacious," says the source. "Morena and Austin were having problems for a long time and separated in the spring before things with Ben turned romantic. They started talking about divorce back then."

COSTARS TO LOVERS

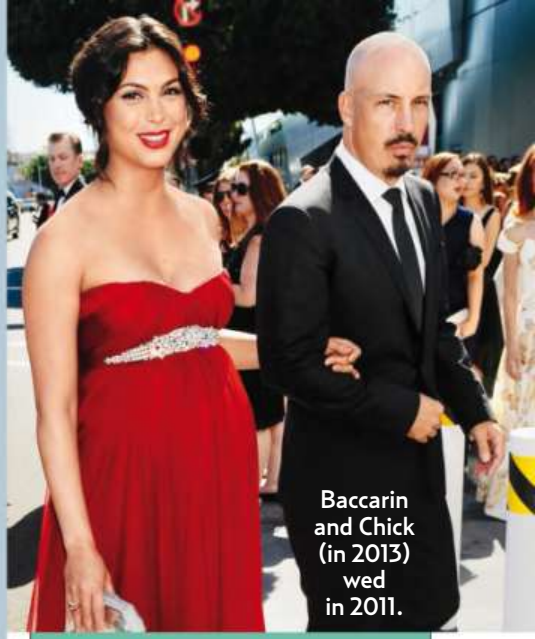

As her three-year marriage fizzled, Baccarin turned to her leading man. "They spoke on the phone as friends," says the Baccarin source. "Ben was her moral support and helped her get through a difficult time." During their lengthy chats, the onscreen lovers (their characters, Dr. Leslie Thompkins and detective James Gordon, are dating) fell for each other. Says the source: "It turned romantic."

Baccarin became pregnant almost immediately. "I don't know that it was planned, but it was very happy news," says the source. "They were overjoyed."

Still, they kept their romance — and her pregnancy — under wraps when they resumed work June 22. (According to an insider, neither production nor Gotham's story lines will be affected.) "They didn't blast their love with a megaphone. They are both reserved and acted that way on set," says the Baccarin source. Indeed, O.C. alum McKenzie, last linked to Teen Wolf star Shelley Hennig in 2013, told Elle last year: "I really don't like relationships to be played out in public."

To that end, the duo have largely avoided the spotlight, opting for quiet lunches and strolls in NYC. The actor also kept mum about Baccarin and impending fatherhood at a Gotham Q&A September 24 — hours after the news went public. But behind the scenes, the pair are preparing for the new arrival and planning a wedding. Baccarin has much to look forward to. As she told Us in August, "I'm good. Life is good!" US

With reporting by Abby Feiner & Carita Rizzo

Baccarin and Chick (in 2013) wed in 2011.

Inside Her Nasty Split

Ka-pow! In court filings related to their divorce, Baccarin and Chick slammed each other while arguing about custody of son Julius. On September 24, an L.A. judge granted joint custody but said the boy could relocate from L.A. to NYC with his mom. "Morena feels great and is relieved," says a Baccarin source, who adds that the actress is trying to get past the dispute. "Everybody just wants what is best for Julius." Us discloses more from their war of words.

UNNECESSARY SARCASM The actress alleged that Chick — who is based in L.A. — became difficult when she tried to see their son. "I'd like to be there alone with Julius. Please Friday all day and night through Sunday morning," she claimed she once texted her ex. Chick's response, according to the documents: "I'd like to run Fox Studios and remake The Sound of Music [with] an entirely black cast of hip hop artist[s]."

DADDY ISSUES Saying that Baccarin's new relationship was confusing Julius, the Girls Against Boys director claims he once found McKenzie at the L.A. home he used to share with his ex. The actor, claimed Chick, "had just taken a shower and he was playing with my son."

GWEN'S NEW TUNE

No doubt, Stefani's voice is stronger than ever

Gwen Stefani is so hot right now. Literally. "Oh, my gosh, I have strep throat," moans the No Doubt frontwoman. "It's on fire!" But with a third solo album in the works — her first in nine years! — and a coaching gig on NBC's The Voice (Mondays, 8 P.M., and Tuesdays, 9 P.M.), holing up in bed is not an option. "I want to do everything," says the mom of sons Kingston, 9, Zuma, 7, and Apollo, 7 months (with ex Gavin Rossdale, 49). The Grammy-winning California native, 45, coughs it up for Us.

Q: Tell Us about your new music!
I've written around 15 songs — they're about my life. It's like the egg and the sperm just went together and created these songs. I feel like I'm in a place of, Wow, I have this gift — use it, share it!

Q: Any interest in going on tour again?
Sure! I'll just put my three kids in a van and say, "Let's do this!" They can sell T-shirts. [Laughs.]

Q: Your first major tour was in 1997. How has your look evolved?
When I started out, I didn't know anything about fashion. I had no money and didn't go shopping — I went to a s--t fabric store. Now, I love makeup and getting dressed up. It never gets old for me.

Q: Can you please share your secret for a perfect red pout?
Definitely, liner helps. And you cannot lick your lips — ever!

"It's so rewarding," Stefani tells Us of The Voice.

The musician will perform in NYC Oct. 17 for MasterCard's Priceless Surprises series.

Dr. Ken, says Jeong, "reflects what my life was like before The Hangover."

KEN JEONG'S NIGHT SHIFT

The comedian scrubs in for a familiar role

Ken Jeong doesn't just play a doctor on TV. The real-life MD calls upon past experiences as writer, executive producer and star of ABC's new comedy Dr. Ken (premieres October 2 at 8:30 P.M.). "When I got into med school," the Duke University grad, 46, tells Us, "acting was like a lover I never got over." Years honing his stand-up in clubs led the Detroit-born father of twins Alexa and Zooey, 8 (with physician wife Tran), to create the small screen's "overprotective dad" with a brusque, unfiltered bedside manner. (He calls one stubborn patient a "WebMD-bag.")

FIELDWORK His training also comes in handy on sets. While filming 2011's The Hangover Part II, "Ed Helms had food poisoning," recalls Jeong. "I was giving advice in my Mr. Chow outfit — at a seedy joint in Bangkok!"

How to Throw a Football Bash

On game days, Kristin Cavallari leads the charge at her Chicago home. When her husband, Bears quarterback Jay Cutler, 32, plays out of town, the Balancing in Heels author, 28, invites friends over for "a relaxed, fun" viewing party. She tells Us her keys to a top-scoring fete.

1 DITCH THE KEG Cavallari serves mimosas for noon kickoffs (the pregnant star sticks to sparkling water) and a signature spirit at night. "I like vodka soda with grapefruit."

2 OFFER FINGER FOOD Her menu must: "Food that's easy to eat," says Cavallari, who makes bacon-wrapped squash and spinach-artichoke dip (see recipe, below).

3 DRESS THE PART She dons a Bears tee while sons Camden, 3, and Jaxon, 16 months, wear Dad's jersey. When he scores, she says, "they yell, 'Touchdown!'"

4 PLAY GAMES The Hills alum organizes a "confidence pool" — pals choose winners for each match and rank them by their faith in the picks. "Everyone gets really into it!"

"As long as there's food, drinks and fun people, you're good!" says the star.

Spinach-Artichoke Dip

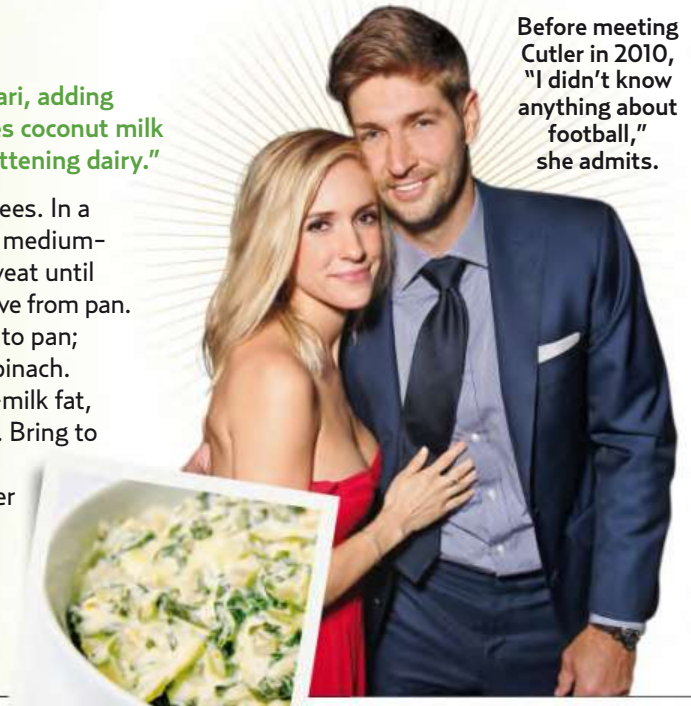

Football Sundays "are my days to indulge," says Cavallari, adding that she loves wings. Still, for her signature dip she uses coconut milk instead of heavy cream. "It's a great replacement for fattening dairy."

- 1 tsp coconut oil
- 1 onion, chopped
- 1 14-oz can artichokes, coarsely chopped
- 1 tbsp minced garlic
- 4 cups packed spinach
- ¾ cup mayonnaise
- 1 can full-fat coconut milk, top-fat part only
- Juice of 1 lemon
- ¼ tsp sea salt
- ¼ tsp black pepper
- 1 tbsp arrowroot powder or non-GMO cornstarch
- Pita chips, for serving

1 Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In a skillet, heat coconut oil over medium-high heat. Add onion and sweat until soft, about 8 minutes. Remove from pan.

2 Add artichokes and garlic to pan; sauté 2 to 3 minutes. Add spinach. Stir in mayonnaise, coconut-milk fat, lemon juice, salt and pepper. Bring to a boil and add onion.

3 Dissolve arrowroot powder in 1 tablespoon water. Stir into artichoke mixture. Transfer to an oven-safe dish and bake 15 minutes. Serve warm with pita chips.

Before meeting Cutler in 2010, "I didn't know anything about football," she admits.

The Martian

Houston, we have a problem: With Prometheus, Gravity and Interstellar, the out-of-this-world disaster genre is more worn-out than an Apollo 13 VHS. Good thing this first-rate popcorn film is brilliantly executed and, like a breath of fresh oxygen, sublimely hilarious. Matt Damon is Mark Watney, part of a team of NASA astronauts sent to explore Mars. During a storm, the mission is aborted and Mark is presumed dead. Just one tiny glitch: He's alive and well. For now, anyway. He's got limited food and water rations in a dry environment and his only entertainment is the disco collection left behind in the space station. (Though, come on, Donna Summer rules on any planet.) It would be nice if his still-in-orbit commander (Jessica Chastain) and NASA could figure out how to rescue him too. That's a lot to juggle on screen, but Ridley Scott (Alien) directs the action across the galaxy in a way that's exhilarating instead of overwhelming. (The climactic sequence is a head-spinning thrill.) Damon, in true movie-star mode, brings a self-assurance to the role as he ingeniously troubleshoots his issues and uses wry humor to vlog his thoughts. Thanks to his bravura performance, there's never a doubt that he will survive.

Freeheld

Had Julianne Moore not just won the Oscar for Still Alice, she'd be a prime contender for this effort — in which she again withers away in a deeply moving drama. Her Laurel Hester is a decorated New Jersey police detective diagnosed with terminal lung cancer. In between treatments, she requests that her domestic partner, Stacie (Ellen Page), is bequeathed her pension benefits. But this is 2005, so the answer from the local board is a hard no. The couple's groundbreaking battle for equality rivets, and their affection under duress is heart-tugging. Still, this is the kind of unpolished, single-issue movie better suited for the small screen.

He Named Me Malala

In 2012, Malala Yousafzai was shot in the head because she stood up to the Taliban. She went on to win a Nobel Peace Prize. But this snooze of a documentary, which follows the activist teen as she navigates speaking tours (above), school and her home life, offers zero insight into her ordeal. A hard-hitting narrative is necessary; superfluous animation is not.

★★★½

What, no air strikes or mass destruction? The counterterrorism drama's season 5 premiere shuns shock and awe, yet the clusterf--ks facing hero Carrie (Claire Danes) are so crisply laid out, viewers will still be rapt. (P.S. Pyrotechnics do come.) After a two-year time jump, former CIA agent and happy mom Carrie now works for a Berlin billionaire (Sebastian Koch) bent on helping Syrian refugees behind enemy lines. That mission is so timely it's eerie, and Danes lends it her usual believable anguish. As Carrie tangles with icy ex-mentor Saul (Mandy Patinkin) and even Hezbollah, the spy-who-came-in-from-the-cold tale has never been so incendiary. (Showtime, 9 P.M.)

MY McCafé COFFEE JOURNAL

We went to LATIN AMERICA to go on a coffee tour.

We loved tasting those 100% Arabica beans.

The BEST thing about our coffee adventure? Finding out we can BREW McCAFÉ AT HOME!
